Wicker, for St. Louis, did not have his usual deceptive ball to-day, and the Reds pounded him all over the field, much to the disgust of a host of friends from his home, Bedford, Ind., who came down on a special train to see him work. The locals pounded him for thirteen safe hits, and the majority of them were lined out at critical stages of the game.

The feature of the game was Captain Tom Corcoran's play. He fielded sensationally and batted 150. He made one of the most daring and sensational base-running plays that was ever seen on the local diamond. In the sixth, after he had doubled and getting too far off second when he thought Wicker was going to throw the ball home. Corcoran started for third, but Wicker caught him in the act. Captain Tom kept on going and by a narvelous dive reached third, managing to make Hartman muff the ball.

The visitors started off like winners. Farrell got his base of Thielman's wild throw and Donovan filed out to Crawford. Smoot drew a base on balls, then Barclay sent a single to center which Hoy fumbled, allowing Farrell and Smoot to score. The next two, however, went out easily.

In the Red's half, with one man out, Dobbe walked and Beckley singled, but was forced out by Crawford. Kruger tried to turn into a double play, threw wild and Dobbs scored. Magoon ended the inning by going out to short.

In the second Corcoran doubled and Steinfeld was given a free pass to first. Then Helne Peltz singled, bringing Corcoran home. Wicker attempted to catch Peltz at first and threw wild, allowing Steinfeldt to score.

BRASHEARS BHIT SCORED RUN.

In the sixth the Cardinals tied the score. With two out Kruger singled and Brashear doubled, bringing "Oom Paul" home after a wild throw had put him on second. The Reds tallied in the next, when Corcoran again doubled and came home on Peltz's single.

Though Kiein had slightly the better of Oscar Miller on the hit question, the Evansville supling kept the tingles made of him well scattered. The work of "Buck" Chapman behind the hat for the scribes was a feature, and not a few of the Brewers were laid out by his good throwing on attempts to steal.

In the first four or five limitings Klein found it hard to locate the plate, and as a result gave many bases on balls, forcing in two or three runs in this way. His outfield backed him up in good style, but the limited work of the Brewers was very raw at times. Eddle Anheuser, at third base, put up an excellent game, but the rest of the base guardians did not saine in a fielding way. G. Ross made several clever catches and stops in center field. The pencilers led all the way and were never in dauger. Next Sunday the Sporting Writers will play Pisher's team from the Auditor's office at the Chy Hall, and the following Sunday will play a return engagement with the Cabatine Athleties, whom they defeated a week ago. sistent? The horses are good, the jockey is good and the owners are always trying.
Look at the Schreiber stable. It is the same way. Look at the Hayes stable, at the McCarren stable. The horses of these stables are just as liable to the ills and to the changes to which herseffesh is heir, to bad luck in races, to bad rides, to everything. Yet why are they so consistent?
Put aside all this corn-cob logic about luck and the horse not being a machine, and hard fortune in races, and this, that and the other thing. The Darden, Schreiber, McCarren horses are just as liable to all these things as any others.
The great secret of their consistency is that they are trying, trying, all the time trying. Pass up the luck and the old stale stuff about "do you feel good every day? No. Ain't there some days you feel better than others? So is it with a horse."
Men who work know one thing. Whether they feel good or bad if they have to do so much work every day, if they have got to do it, they do it. So it is with a horse. If he has got to do, he will do it. Of course in horses and men there are exceptional cases. On the whole when the one or the other is made to do it he does, feeling god or bad.
Consistency is a mere matter of trying. That is all. Are not Lady Strathmore. Crimean, Brulare, A. D. Gibson, J. Sidney Walker. Dewey. Schwalbe. Wallabout. Glenwood. Buccleuth, Lakeview Belle and all these horses just as much entitled to be sick, to be feeling bad, to be bumped in races, to be badly ridden, to take odd notions, etc., as All Saints, Concertina. Acceptances Due for Club Members.

The feature of the racing at the Fair Grounds this week will be the running of the historic Club Members' Handicap, next Saturday afternoon. This stake has always been run on the first Saturday in June since 1892, when it was established. Some of the sreatest thoroughbreds in the history of the American turf have won this stake. Wadsworth beat Aloha in the first Club Members' Handicap, and the great Morello showed the way home for Ray S. and other good ones in 1891. Ray S. finished second again in 1894, being placed to Yo Tambien, the only mare that ever succeeded in capturing the stake. Clifford won the Club Members' Handicap of 1895, shouldering the terrific impost of 123 pounds and stepping the mile and a quarter in 206 flat. This time still stands as the track record as well as the record for the race. Wadsworth's Club Members' Handicap was the most valuable in the history of the stake. This year it will be worth more than it has been in many years. The association adds $2,000 and horsemen have supported the stake so liberally that the indications are it will be worth in the immediate neighborhood of $4,000.

This horse belongs to Will Haves, a brother of the redoubtable T. P. Hayes, Monograph ran a magnificent race in the Brooklyn Handlenn and is thought to be the best Western horse shown in the East this spring. Captain R. R. Rice has been resting up Wax Taper for the Club Members' Handicap. If the famous son of Candelmas has recovered his spring form he may be able to make it interesting for even the record-breaking Maximus and Monograph. Fred Cook's good horse, Omdurman is another probable starter in the Club Members' Handicap that dopes to cut an important figure in the contest if he should go to the post fit and ready. This horse showed a high-class performer around Chicago last fall. Doctor Holtgrewe will start one or the other next Saturday.

GOING BACKWARD

Poor Showing Made by Former Champion Against Danny Daugherty.

Of last week's battles, probably none was regarded with more interest by old-timers and veterans of the ring than the meeting of George Dixon, former feather-weight champlon, and Lanny Daugherty, who was twice knocked out by Harry Forbes in this city hast winter. Dixon ami baugherty met in a six-round bout at Philadelphia and throughout the contest Dauny is raid to have mad a wide margin of riduatage. Dixon apprantume was wint interested longuing followers of the little fighter from its position as champion of the world, but two feats ago, was the occasion of muon sympathetic comment. Then he found in difficulty in securing a purse of several thousand follows whenever he chose to either the comment of their meeting. Sullivan has selected to the security of the interest of the distinct of the security of the interest of the security of the contest of the security of the contest of the security of t longtime followers of the ring, and the de-cadence of the little fighter from his posi-tion as champion of the world, but two years ago, was the occasion of much sym-pathetic comment. Then be round no diffi-culty in securing a purse of several thou-axing dollars whenever he chose to enter the ring, win or lise, and as a theatrical at-traction he generally proved a money-maker with vacadeville comparies. Now he lights for purses which pay him fewer dol-lars in hundreds than he used to receive in thousands.

Two years ago, when Daxon was still opponent.

Commenting upon the battle, Macon Me-Cormick, the well-known puglistic writer, states that there never was a period in the fight at which a referee would not may awarded the verdict to Daugherty had decisions been permitted in Paniadelphia. Dix on lasted the six rounds and that is about all that can be spoken of his showing in the bout.

all that can be spoken of his showing in the bout.

Baugherty is really a legitimate bantam in the true sense of the word and he is undoubtedly the best man under lie pounds in the country at present. He is a clever little fighter and was fighting men of greater weight when he met Forbes here and when he tought Tommy Feltz in Philadelphia, as well as when he met litton list week. At 168 pounds he has a clear title to the championship.

Charley McKeever of Philadelphia and "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brion will meet tonight for the third time in their home city.
The men have fought two battles, with the result in O'Brien's favor, but McKeever is persevering and has succeeded in getting Jack to weigh in at 156 pounds at 5 o clock.
Although McKeever is quite a clever boxer,
It appears as if O'Brien should surely best him.

him. O'Brien is the boxer whom James J. Cor-bett mentioned while in this city as a likely sparring partner for himself in case he culnched a match with Jeffries or Fitzsim-mons for next fall. Since his return from England. O'Brien has shown himself capa-ble of holding his own with all the fighters of his weight who were sent against him here, and he appears a trifle too strong a proposition for McKeever.

That Young Corbett's experience as a theatrical attraction was responsible for his poor showing against Kid Broad is the theory advanced by a New York pugilistic writer. This critic does not believe that Corbett showed his real ability in that contest, but thinks that the perpicions effects of his starring tour so lowered his form that he failed to stop Broad as his admirers hoped he would do.

While it is generally admitted that theatrical life is most deleterious to puglisits, and that the decline in many a boxer's fistic ability may be laid to a cafeer on the stage, the majority of ring followers are more inclined to ascribe Corbett's showing to lack of condition from failure to train than to stage life. The impression that he held Broad too cheaply is general, and it is thought he will make a better showing on his next appearance.

Broad too cheaply is general, and he is thought he will make a better showing on his next appearance.

The morning after the battle Corbett admitted in a statement to the Denver Post that he had put up a poor fight and that it was one of his "off nights. Whether his "offishness' was caused by too hilarious an existence just before the bout the champion failed to say.

Jimmy Britt's victory over George Lavigne at San Francisco last Thursday evening has resulted in the winner becoming an important factor in light-weight fichting circles, and he is now considered a championship possibility by his friends, although the average patron of boxing will wish to see further proofs of his ability. One result of the contest however, will probably be the retirement of Lavigne from the ring, as his arm was broken in three places in the course of the bout.

In a review of the contest in a San Franas his arm was broken in three places in the course of the bout.

In a review of the contest in a San Francisco paper, the following account appears: Britt in all the rounds except the first two was manifestly the superior in quickness and in punishing power. His device of adopting the crouching tactics of Jeffries, advancing his left shoulder, made it impossible for Lavigne to reach his jaw with either right or left swing. Again and again Lavigne missed him but one or two inches with blows that would have resulted in a knockout. It seemed as though Lavigne was as heavily muscle-bound as Sharkey, for he could not land a straight punch.

After the second round Britt did all the leading. He landed the only clean blows on mouth and face, and in the fourth round he brought blood from the Kid's mouth. After that round he adopted the tactics of rusning in savagely with straight left-hand punches on the wind and over the heart blows which evidently had great punishing power. In the last round, after a series of clinches and rallies, in which Britt had all the best of it, the young fellow cut loose, forced the veteran against the ropes and landed blow after blow in the face and neck. Lavigne was grosgy and would have evidently gone out in half a minute had not his brother rushed in and thrown up the sponge. After the fight Lavigne said:

"My arm did not seem badly sprained, but I felt as though muscle-bound, and I could not reach Britt, no matter how hard I tried. He was in like a flash with a punishing blow, and then out again before I could land with either right or left. This victory over Lavigne pats Britt far up in the light-wight close. His next fight will probably be with George McFadden, in June. Britt said: "My seconds told me to be careful of Lavigne after every round, as the old man was very foxy, but I saw that I could hit him at will, and after the third round I cut out the pace."

Lavigne has been fighting for about fif-teen years, and was long known as the most terrible punisher of his weight in the ring. His victory over Joe Walcott was an indication of his ability in the punching line. His most celebrated blow was his kidney punch, coupled with his left stomach punch, which operated unfavorably for his opponents on many occasions.

A paragraph in the Cincinnati Enquirer concerning Joe Choynski reads as follows: Joe Choynski, who was in town last week giving sparring exhibitions with Marion Hart, is well acquainted with Eddic Greaney, the San Francisco sporting man selected to referee the coming championship battle between Jim Jeffries and Bob Flirstmanos next July. In fact, Choynski and Greancy started in as amateur boxers together on the coarst. Joe says that when they were kids together they used to stand around on the corners talking boxing. The coppers got after them, however, and broke up the outdoor sessions and they joined an athletic club. They boxed at tournaments together, and Choynski still has a gold watch and several diamond-studded medals he won as an amateur.

"Do you know why so many people call me the old war horse?" said Joe the offernight. "Well, I'll tell you," he continued "I have been boxing since I was it years of age, and as I am now 33 you can see that the public naturally has an impression that I am an old man. I am still as gool as ever as far as training and fighting arconcerned, but when I issue a challenge to fight one of the big fellows the cry is at once set up that I am too old. I have always taken the best of care of myself, and have my own lifeas about training I'll but right now that I can go out and beat any man my weight in the business for keyards.

"I was champion of the Facilic Coast when I was It. One of the first men I everboxed was Con Riordan, who died in the

"I was champion of the Facific Coast when I was it. One of the first men I ever boxed was Con Riordan, who died in the East after boxing Bob Fitzsimmons. The first pair of tights I ever were were presented to me by a big fellow who just came off the high seas. He was a sallor, and they called him the Tipton Slasher." When I whipped him he pulled off the tights and handed them to me. He said I would some day make a great fighter. The funniest part of it all was that I did not think that I could fight at all when I was an amaleur. I guess I must have knocked out haif a feasen young fellows before I realized that it was my punching ability that did it. At the beginning I thought some one had fixed my opponents to fake knockout, so as to make me think I was a world-beater, but after awhile I got onto the fact that it was all on the square, and I could not sleep at nights thinking of what a great fighter I would be if I could keep it up. When I fought Jim Cerbett on a barge at Frisca there were Zo spectators at the fingside. At the end all had left but ten. That was of e one of the hardest fights I ever had in my life, and I guess I've been in as many as any man in the game."

Dispatches from Denver contain two man in the game."

Dispatches from Denver contain two pugliste items of interest. One of these is the fact that Dave Sullivan has succeeded in getting on his match with Young William Corbett. To take place June 20 in the Denver Collegum, while the other relates to a rough-and tumble fight in which Sullivan and Abe Attell are said to have figured in the vestibule of the Oxford Hotel or that city.

be held in Greece only now and then, other countries being chosen from time to time. German collegiate fencing is a game rather than a dangerous form of sword play, which is not a numbred years old, having been introduced during the former half of the hast century to prevent death by the sword duels then in vogue. It has become the fashion and though cuts on the face and hands are sometimes serious, as a rule, they only leave a scar, which acts as a passport to the man who bears it, snawing that he was a member of one of the exclusive clubs of students when at college.
As it involves a certain amount of bloodshed, it will be difficult to display before the public as it is practiced at the universities.

WILL REVISE FREIGHT RATES. Illinois Railroad Commission to Hear From Shippers and Carriers. REPUBLIC SPECIAL

Springfield, Ill., June 1.-Railroad representatives and shippers from all over the West come to Springfield this week to at-West come to Springfield this week to attend the hearing on the proposed revision of freight shipping rates fixed by the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commission to open next Tuesday. In addition to representatives of large individual shipping interests, several traffic bureaus and merchants' associations from all over the State will have representatives in the hearing. The meeting will be the most important of its kind ever held in the State.

No revision of the Illinois shipping schednle has been formulated for fourteen years.

Each succeeding commission has adopted the schedule of the preceding board. Oc-casional changes in the existing tariffs have been made, but comparatively few changes of classification or rates have been made in this time. As a result, shipping rates read representatives are willing to let the present schedules stand, and their fight will be made upon this basis. While they have not shown their hands in the matter, it is expected that hey will ask for an increase in the minimum carload weight for freight cars. When the old schedule was formulated very few cars had been built over thirty-loar feet long and the minimum catacity was fixed at 21,00 pounds. Now the illinois Contral Enfirond alone has 5,000 forty-load cars, and the same monsters are in use on centre every other line. These cars have a capacity ranging from 60,000 to 20,000 pounds, and the roads object to alveng carlead rates on these carriers when containing less than one-third of their ca-pacity.

Shippers will make a special appeal for a change in rule it of the illinois commis-sion, which deals with assorted carloads. Under the existing rule, when an assorted carload is shipped the railroad company charges the minimum car-load turiff on the heaviest lot in the car, and then charges the "less than carload" rates on all other lots in the ear, making a double tariff or every lot except the heaviest. The shippers will ask for a change of charge to straight carload rates.
